

Cross-Modal Protein Design for Antibody Discovery

Abstract. This paper investigates cross-modal protein design for antibody discovery. The method links sequence representations, molecular docking signals, and wet-lab screening outcomes to prioritize candidates under limited biological assays.

Keywords: protein design; antibody discovery; molecular docking; active learning

1. Introduction

Biological design tasks require reliable links between model predictions and evidence.